

RAILWAY COTTAGE

In 1844 the cottage, now known as Railway Cottage, was owned by James Fairs of the Cock Inn.

When the second railway track was built in 1865, the north-east corner of the cottage was reduced to allow for the width of the trains, as shown in this photograph on the right.

At one time the only access to the cottage was down a steep flight of steps from the railway bridge.

